DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claim 1 recites the limitation "the body of said throttle bore" in line 10. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Is this the throttle body?

3. Claim 4 recites the limitation "said bore body" in line 5. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

4. Claim 7 recites the limitation "the bore body" in line 5. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

5. Claim 13 recites the limitation "the bore body" in line 5. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.
6. Regarding claim 1, the phrase "(hereafter, it is called "bore body")" renders the claim indefinite because it is unclear whether the phrase is part of the claimed invention. See MPEP § 2173.05(d).
7. Regarding claim 10, the phrase "(automatic)" renders the claim indefinite because it is unclear whether the phrase is part of the claimed invention. See MPEP § 2173.05(d).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

8. Claims 1-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Irihune et al (6,725,833).

Irihune et al teach an airflow sensor 12 for measuring the flow rate of air passing through a throttle bore, a throttle position sensor for measuring the opening of a throttle valve in said throttle bore, and an engine control unit 11 for controlling the engine, wherein an electronic circuit 47 composing said engine control unit is provided at a base which is any other member than the body of a throttle bore (see figure 1).

9. Claims 1-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Hirayama et al (6,681,742).

Hirayama et al teach an airflow sensor 13 for measuring the flow rate of air passing through a throttle bore, a throttle position sensor 16 for measuring the opening of a throttle valve in said throttle bore, and an engine control unit for controlling the engine, wherein an electronic circuit composing said engine control unit is provided at a base which is any other member than the body of a throttle bore (see figures 18 & 20).
